5.5)The routine jobs to be carried out included in general but not be limited to the following items for maintenance work of Air Conditioning Plants and packages units.

5.5.1 QUARTERLY:

1. Clean air filters: A dirty filter can reduce the plant capacity. More the dirt accumulation on the air filter, greater will be the reduction in capacity of the plant. Air filters, if not cleaned regularly will get saturated with dirt and thereafter dirt will pass on to the cooling coil fins, which will affect plant capacity much more and in extreme cases can even lead to liquid flood back to the compressor, which is highly injurious to the compressor. Cooling coils being wet, this dirt/dust will form a crust on the coil. Hence, air filters are to be cleaned regularly. Weekly cleaning has been suggested; but where the plants are installed in dust environments, it may be necessary to clean the filters more often. Air filters should be changed, when it is found that cleaning does not remove all the dust.
2. Leak testing for refrigerant leak: A halide torch should be used to locate the leaks. Now electronic leak detectors are available. While leak testing, the approach should be to find a leak rather than taking it for granted that there won't be any leak and doing the work of leak test as ritual. Even a minor leakage can lead to lot of problems, such as poor oil return, heating of compressor apart from poor cooling. Further refrigerant is costly and so less leak/no leak becomes a big cost saving centre in the operation of the plant.
3. Check the condensate tray and drain for dirt or moisture build up-clean as necessary. Ensure that condensate drains completely from the tray, drain is not blocked.
4. Check for voltage, current, and earthing.
5. Functionality of pressure gauges and thermometers needs to be checked .
6. Analyze the pressure and temperature readings of the unit from the log book and establish that the unit is working satisfactorily. Corrective action should be taken promptly when reading shows even a minor malfunction.
7. Contractor shall maintain records and log-sheets in the format specified by Engineer- in-charge. Contractor shall submit the progress report scheduled as indicated by EIC.

5.5.2 ANNUAL MAINTENANCE SCHEDULE:

Checks to be done during servicing:

1. Check various pressures, temperature and current and analyze the readings to ascertain the condition of the plant.
2. Ensure that the oil return is proper.
3. Carry out a thorough test for refrigerant leak.
4. Inspect the cleanliness of the filters and replace them if necessary.

5. Check the operation of all safety and operating controls.
 6. Check drains for free flow and clean when required.
 7. Check for abnormal vibration and noise. Check for tightness of all fasteners.
 8. Check cooling coil fins for dirt accumulation. Clean if required.
 9. Check fan motor and its connector for proper wiring.
 13. Check fan and fan motor bearings. Repair/replace if necessary.
 14. Cooling coil: The temperature difference between the canvas temperature and the evaporator, (or water leaving temperature) is the criteria to determine whether the coils require cleaning. Cooling coils are to be cleaned with water under pressure.
 15. Lubricate all moving parts.
 16. Changing compressor oil if required.
 17. Check HP/LP switch for function.
 18. Check all sensors (Temp./Pressure etc.)
