SCOPE OF WORK FOR HEAT TREATMENT / STRESS RELIEVING JOBS

- a) Contractor shall keep one No. of Automatic programmable solid microprocessor based Stress Relieving (SR) Unit along with accessories and sufficient No. of heating coils of different gauge, 100 meters of 63 Amp—3-phase power cable etc. at site to take up two similar jobs simultaneously.

After completion of job, this additional SR unit shall be de-mobilized from site only after necessary clearance given from Engineer-in-charge.

1. PRE-HEATING:

Pre-heating shall be supplied to the area local to and including the weld preparation and the temperature shall be maintained during the deposit of weld metal. Irrespective of the class of steel proper specification temperature must be maintained without interruption throughout the period of the root run. Weld deposit should not be allowed to cool until the thickness of weld metal deposited exceeds one third of the final weld thickness.

Above ¾" thick, carbon steel is usually pre-heated as a protection against the high thermal conductivity of steel. It is recommended not to have any interruption in welding process. If at all an interruption is necessary, the joint shall be wrapped in dry thermal insulating blankets (i.e. ceramic pads) to ensure slow cooling before next operation start.

The selection of a particular pre-heating temperature depends on a number of factors –

- The higher the carbon equivalent level the higher the preheat required.
- The greater the mass of metal around the weld joint, the greater the loss of heat and the greater need to have a high pre-heating temperature.

2. PLACEMENT OF HEATING ELEMENTS:

Heat treatment / pre-heating shall be carried out on the heat affected zone giving sufficient clearance of welding portion. Minimum two or more elements shall be arranged in two separate bands on either sides of weld portion circumferentially from outside. Covering requires heat band of 2T (T- specimen thickness – max. 6” either side) on the either sides of weld and above this asbestos cloth or ceramic pad insulation shall be wrapped tightly.

3. POST WELD HEAT TREATMENT:

High level residual stresses can occur in elements due to the restraint by the parent metal during weld solidification. These stresses may be as high as the yield stress of the metal itself. When combined with normal load these stresses may exceed the design stress. Post heat treatment will lower the tensile and yield stresses of the weld metal by approximately 10%. This reduction in strength is not only for removal of residual stress but also for softening of material and the weld.

4. PLACEMENT OF HEATING ELEMENT FOR LOCALIZED STRESS RELIEVING:

Localized post heat treatment shall be carried out on the circumferential welded portion and heat effected zone. Heating elements shall be wrapped circumferentially from outside (including the welded portion) covering heating band area. Number of element deployment shall depend upon dia. and thickness of the shell and above this ceramic insulation pad shall be wrapped tightly with the help of binding wire.

5. CONTROLS:

Heating element shall be connected to the distribution cum control unit using feed and return cables. The heat input to the job shall be regulated by Digital timer in conjunction with contactors system, to conform to S.R. operation.

6. THERMOCOUPLE POSITION:

- All thermocouples shall be of the nickel-chromium / nickel-Aluminium type “K”. Thermocouple calibration certificates shall be submitted to BCPL for review and records.
- The above mentioned calibrated thermocouple shall be clamped against the job by tacking bolt / nut which thermocouple can be held tightly.
- Numbers of thermocouple fixed are as mentioned below:

Sl No	Size	No of Thermocouples
1	Up to 6” Diameter	1 No.
2	8” to 10” Diameter	2 Nos each at 180 Degree Apart
3	12” to 24” Diameter	3 Nos each at 120 Degree Apart
4	Above 24” Diameter	1 No in every meter of weld

- Care shall be taken to ensure that the cold junction of thermocouple wires do not touch and should be away from the hot junction.
- The thermocouple to extension cable connection shall be clear of the heating zone.

7. THERMOCOUPLE EXTENSION CABLE:

Thermocouple shall be connected to the temperature recorder via color-coded copper constant Compensating lead of proper specification.

8. TEMPERATURE RECORDER:

Temperature recorder shall be of six channels potentiometric self-compensating type, duly calibrated and the certificate conforming same shall be submitted to BCPL for records and review.

9. THERMAL INSULATIONS:

Ceramic fibre pad of suitable thickness and density shall be applied around the weld and heat affected zone so that the temperature at the edge of the heated band is not less than half the peak temperature. The insulation shall be held with the help of supporting stud and strip and shall be wrapped tightly. The minimum thickness of insulation must not be less than 25 mm.

The manhole nozzles, other nozzles and opening in the vicinity of heating zone shall be suitably insulated to avoid heat losses during local stress relief.

10. STRESS RELIEVING CYCLE:

The suitable post weld heat treatment procedure for particular job shall be furnished by BCPL on case to case basis depending on type of material, thickness etc.

Note: For stress relieving jobs all requirements of referencing codes shall be complied by the contractor.

After completion of stress relieving jobs time temperature chart shall be furnished to BCPL'S representative for review.

11. HEATING OF PIPELINES FOR DE- CHOCKING PURPOSE:

The scope of work in heating of pipelines for de- chocking of purpose shall include but not limited to De-chocking of line by heating the pipelines/ valves/ equipment part with help of nickel – chromium coil with or without recorder in controlled manner.

The coil to be wrapped around the pipe line/ valves/ equipment part and it should be covered by insulation material. The temperature of the surface is to be checked by temperature indicating crayons periodically during the operation. The contract to be maintain necessary temperature indicating crayons.
